Hello Halle,

I saw you had a question about edible items at the booth. We are checking in with the convention center to ensure we have a full understanding of the rules and regulations around this. Small items like candy are likely fine, but for larger edible giveaways they may want you to purchase that directly from them. While I love the sustainability aspect of fresh fruit, I would say you should stick with individually packaged items for sanitary reasons.

I also saw your other email, copied below:

Is it possible to have a local store deliver items to the event? If so, what address do we provide, and are there any special rules regarding the delivery? For example, do we need to meet them outside the event to carry the items in ourselves, or can they carry the items into the event? Do you have a suggested meeting place that is easy for both my team and the local vendor to do the handoff of items?

The convention center cannot accept deliveries outside of the shipping services of KSA, so you would need to arrange to go outside and meet up with the delivery person at the main entrance roundabout driveway. Below is a map, and here is the an image of the entrance.

Best,

Britta Ehnebuske (she/her)

Hello. I am helping to organize the AWS booth for ROSCon 2022, and have another question... I see the event guidelines state: "If you wish to hand out promotional products and giveaways to attendees please choose utilitarian items that are sustainably made and/ or recyclable." Are there any restrictions on edible items, such as wrapped candy bars, apples, etc.?

Thanks,
Halle
